

! Appropriate Use of Electronic Journals !

Electronic journals are governed by license agreements between publishers and us. Any violation of these license agreements may result in loss of access to these resources for the entire Tokyo Tech Community, and will be a hindrance to our research and education. Please observe the contract.

Prohibited actions generally include:

Downloading of significant portions of the materials

Not only Systematic downloading of content – manually or with Specialized software--, but also accessing the full text articles continuously or regularly can be regarded as the violation of the license.

Just displaying the full text articles in HTML format without a break for hours can be regarded as the same.

Please let us know if you need to download many articles for your research.

Distributing to others.

It is prohibited to distribute the articles (by attached mail, or by making photocopies) to others.
